WATER DANCE PART-1

*SOME PEOPLE SAY that I am one thing.
Others say that I am many.
Ever since the world began
I have been moving in an endless circle
Sometimes I fall from the sky.*

I am the rain.

*Sometimes I cascade.
I tumble down,
down,
over the moss-covered rocks,
through the forests shadows.*

I am the mountain stream.

*At the foot of the mountains,
I leap from a stone cliff.
Spiralling.
Plunging.*

I am the waterfall.

*In the shadows of the mountain,
I am still and deep
I fill and overflow.*

I am the lake.

*I wind through broad, golden valleys joined by streams, joined by creeks.
I grow ever wider,
broader and deeper.*

I am the river.

*I pass through a gateway of high stones palisades,
leaving the land behind.
Cool silver moonlight*

sparkles and dances on my waves.

I am the sea.

*Drawn upward
by warm sunlight.
in white-silver veils
I rise into the air.
I disappear.*

ACTIVITY - 3

Answer the following question.

How is the river different from the sea?

ACTIVITY - 4

WATER DANCE PART-2

I am the mist.

In thousands of shapes I reappear high above the earth in the blue sky.

I float.

I drift.

I am the clouds.

Carried by winds from distant seas.

*I move,
growing heavier,
growing darker,
returning.*

I am the storm front.

*At the walls of the mountains,
 I rise up
 as gleaming power-filled towers in the darkened sky.
 I am the thunderhead.
 I blind the sky with lightning.
 The earth trembles with my thunder.
 I rage.
 I drench the mountainside.
 I am the storm.
 Storms come.
 Storms pass.
 I am countless droplets of rain left floating in the silent air.
 I reflect all the colors of sunlight.
 I am the rainbow.
 I am one thing.
 I am many things.
 I am water.
 This is my dance through our world.*

A Secret for Two

Montreal is a very large city of Canada, and it has some very wide and big streets like Prince Edward Street. No one knew this street as well as did Pierre Dupin. Pierre had delivered milk to the families on this street for thirty years. He was one of the many milk-wagon drivers that worked for a milk company.

During the past fifteen years the horse which drew the milk-wagon used by Pierre was a large, white horse named Joseph. When the big, white horse first came to the milk company, he didn't have a name. They told Pierre that he could use the white horse. Pierre stroked the horse's neck and looked into his eyes. "This is a nice horse, a kind and gentle one," said Pierre "I'll name him after Saint Joseph, who was also very kind and gentle."

Within a year Joseph knew the milk route as well as Pierre did. Pierre used to say that he didn't need reins - he never touched them. Each morning Pierre arrived at the stables of the milk company at five o'clock. The wagon would be loaded and Joseph hitched to it.

Pierre would call softly to Joseph, "Go on, my friend," and this splendid combination would stalk proudly down the street.

The wagon, without any direction from Pierre, would arrive in Prince Edward Street. The horse would stop at the first house, allow Pierre perhaps thirty seconds to get down from his seat and put a bottle of milk at the front door. Again the horse would go on, skipping two houses and stopping at the third. So down the length of the street the two would go. Then, Joseph would turn around and come back along the other side of the street. Yes, Joseph was really a smart horse.

At the stables Pierre would boast of Joseph's skill: "I never touch the reins. He knows just where to stop. Why, a blind man could do my job with Joseph pulling the wagon."

So it went on for years. Pierre and Joseph grew old together, but gradually, not suddenly. Pierre's huge walrus moustache was pure white now, and Joseph didn't lift his knees so high. Jacques, the foreman of the stables, never noticed that they were getting old until Pierre appeared one day carrying a big walking stick.

"Hey Pierre," Jacques laughed. "Maybe you've got the gout, hey?"

"Yes, Jacques," replied Pierre uncertainly. "But as one grows old, legs get tired."

"You should teach the horse to place the milk bottles at the front door of your customers," Jacques said to him. "He does everything else for you."

One morning, the manager of the milk company came to inspect the early morning deliveries. Pointing out to Pierre, Jacques said to him, 'Watch how he talks to that horse whom he calls Joseph. See the look in the horse's eyes. I think these two share a secret. Sometimes they seem to chuckle at us, as they go off on their route in the morning. Pierre is a good man, but he's getting old. Don't you think he should be retired and given a small pension?'

"Of course," said the manager. "He has been on this route now for thirty years and not even once, has there been a complaint against him. Tell him it is time he should rest. His salary will go on just the same."

But Pierre refused to retire. He could not bear the thought of not driving his Joseph everyday. He said to Jacques, "We are two old men - Joseph and I. Let us wear out together. When Joseph is ready to retire - then I, too, will leave."

Jacques, who was a kind man understood. There was something about Pierre and Joseph which made a man smile tenderly. It was as though each drew some hidden strength from the other. When Pierre was sitting in his seat, and when Joseph was hitched to the wagon, neither seemed old. But when they finished their work, Pierre would limp down the street, seeming very old indeed. The horse's head would also drop and he would walk very wearily to his stall.

Then one morning, Jacques had a dreadful news for Pierre. He said, "Pierre, Joseph did not wake this morning. He was very old; Pierre, you know he was twenty-five, and that is like seventy-five for man."

"Yes," Pierre said slowly. "I am seventy-five. Now I shall never see him again. My poor Joseph!"

Jacques patted Pierre on the shoulder: "We'll find another horse just as good as Joseph.. Why, in a month's time you'll teach him your route."

"We'll.....".

But he stopped when he looked into Pierre's eyes.

For years Pierre had worn a heavy cap, the peak of which came low over his eyes. Now when Jacques looked into Pierre's eyes, he saw something which startled him. He saw a dead, lifeless look in them. The eyes were mirroring the grief that was in Pierre's heart and in his soul. It was as though his heart and soul had died.

"Take today off, Pierre," Jacques said. But before Jacques could complete his sentence, Pierre was already limping down the street. Tears were streaming down his cheeks and he was sobbing. There was a warning yell from the driver of a huge truck that was coming fast, and there was the scream of brakes. But it appeared that Pierre had heard neither.

Five minutes later an ambulance doctor said, "He's dead."

Jacques and several of the milk-wagon-drivers had arrived by then. They looked down at the still figure.

"I couldn't help it," the driver of the truck protested. "He walked right into my truck. He never saw it, I guess. He walked into it as though he were blind."

The ambulance doctor bent down. "Blind!" he said, looking into Pierre's eyes. "Of course, the man was blind. See those cataracts! "This man has been blind for five years." Then he turned to Jacques and said, "You say he worked for you! Didn't you know he was blind?"

"No.....no.....," Jacques said softly. "None of us knew. There was only one who knew - a friend of his, named Joseph... It was a secret, I think, just between those two."

ACTIVITY - 2

After Twenty Years

- 1.1 The policeman on the beat moved up the avenue impressively. The impressiveness was habitual and not for show, for spectators was few. The time was barely 10 o'clock at night but chilly gusts of wind with a taste of rain in them had well nigh de-peopled the streets.
- 1.2 Trying doors as he went, twirling his club with many intricate and artful movements now and then to cast his watchful eye adown the pacific thoroughfare, the officer, with his stalwart form and slight swagger made a fine picture of a guardian of peace. The vicinity was one that kept early hours. Now and then you might see the lights of a cigar store or an all-night lunch counter; but the majority of the doors belonged to business places that had long since been closed.
- 2.1 When about midway of a certain block, the policeman suddenly slowed his walk. In the doorway of a darkened hardware store a man leaned, with an unlighted cigar in his mouth. As the policeman walked up to him, the man spoke up quickly.
- 2.2 “It's all right, officer,” he said, “I'm just waiting for a friend. It's an appointment made twenty years ago. Sounds a little funny to you, doesn't it? Well, I'll explain if you'd like to make certain, it's all straight. About that long ago there used to be a restaurant where this store stands—'Big Joe Brady's restaurant'. “Until five years ago,” said the policeman. It was torn down then.”
- 2.3 The man in the doorway struck a match and lit his cigar. The light showed a pale, square jawed face with keen eyes and a little white scar near his right eyebrow. His scarfpin was a large diamond, oddly set.

- 3.1 “Twenty years ago tonight,” said the man, “I dined here at Big Joe Brady's with Jimmy Wells, my best chum and the finest chap in the world. He and I were raised here in New York, just like two brothers, together. I was eighteen and Jimmy was twenty. The next morning, I was to start for the West to make my fortune. You couldn't have dragged Jimmy out of New York; he thought it was the only place on earth. Well, we agreed that night that we would meet here again exactly twenty years from that date and time, no matter what our conditions might be or from what distance we might have to come. We figured that in twenty years each of us ought to have our destiny worked out and our fortunes made, whatever they were going to be.”
- 3.2 “It sounds pretty interesting,” said the policeman. “Rather a long time between meets, though, it seems to me. Haven't you heard from your friend since you left?”
- 3.3 “Well, yes, for a time we corresponded,” said the other. “But after a year or two we lost track of each other. You see, the West is a pretty big proposition, and I kept hustling around over it pretty lively. But I know Jimmy will meet me here if he's alive, for he always was the truest, staunchest old chap in the world. He'll never forget. I came a thousand miles to stand in this door tonight and its worth if my old partner turns up.
- 4.1 The waiting man pulled out a handsome watch, the lids of it set with small diamonds. “Three minutes to ten,” he announced.”It was exactly ten o'clock when we parted here at the restaurant door.”
- “Did pretty well out in the West, didn't you?” asked the policeman.
- 4.2 “You bet! I hope Jimmy has done half as well. He was a kind of plodder, though, good fellow as he was. I've had to compete with some of the sharpest wits going to get my pile. A man gets in a groove in New York. It takes the West to put a razor-edge on him."The policeman twirled his club and took a step or two. "I'll be on my way. Hope your friend comes around all right. Going to call time on him sharp?"

"I should say not!" said the other. "I'll give him half an hour at least. If Jimmy is alive on earth, he'll be here by that time. So long, officer.

"Good-night sir," said the policeman passing on along his beat trying doors as he went.

- 5.1 There was now a fine cold drizzle falling, and the wind had risen from its uncertain puffs into a steady blow. The few pedestrians in the neighbourhood hurried dismally and silently along with coat collars turned high and pocketed hands. And in the door of the hardware store the man who had come a thousand miles to fill an appointment with the friend of his youth, smoked his cigar and waited. About twenty minutes he waited, and then a tall man in a long overcoat, with collar turned up to his ears, hurried across from the opposite side of the street. He came directly to the waiting man.

“Is that you, Bob?” he asked doubtfully.

“Is that you, Jimmy Wells?” cried the man in the door.

5.2 “Bless my heart!” exclaimed the new arrival, grasping both the other's hands with his own. “It's Bob, sure as fate. I was certain I'd find you here if you were still in existence. Well, well, well twenty years is a long time. The old restaurant's gone. Bob; I wish it had lasted, so we could have had another dinner there. How has the West treated you, old man?”

5.3 “It has given me everything I asked it for. You've changed lots, Jimmy, I never thought you were so tall by two or three inches.”

“Oh, I grew a bit after I was twenty.”

“Doing well in New York, Jimmy?”

“Moderately. I have a position in one of the city departments. Come on, Bob we'll go around to a place I know of and have a good long talk about old times.”

6.1 The two men started up the street, arm in arm. One, his egoism enlarged by success, was beginning to outline the history of his career. The other, submerged in his overcoat, listened with interest.

6.2 At the corner stood a drugstore, brilliant with electric lights. When they came into the glare, each of them turned simultaneously to gaze upon the other's face.

The man from the West stopped suddenly and released his arm.

“You're not Jimmy Wells,” he snapped. “Twenty years is a long time but not long enough to change a man's nose from a Roman to a pug.”

- 6.3 “It sometimes changes a good man into a bad one,” said the tall man. “You’ve been under arrest for ten minutes, ‘Silky’ Bob. Going quietly, are you? That’s sensible. Now, before we go to the station, here’s a note I was asked to hand you. You may read it here at the window. It’s from Patrolman Wells.”
- 7.1 The man from the West unfolded the little piece of paper handed over to him. His hand was steady when he began to read but it trembled a little by the time he had finished. The note was rather short.
- 7.2 Bob, I was at the appointed place on time. When you struck the match to light your cigar, I saw it was the face of the man wanted in Chicago. Somehow I couldn’t do it myself so I went around and got a plainclothes man to do the job.

UNIT-4

At the Theatre

ACTIVITY - 1

The chief interest of a story or film lies in its element of suspense and mystery. And if the mystery or suspense is revealed to us beforehand, all its charm is spoiled. The revelation must come to us step by step as the story progresses. Some people, who have seen a play or a movie, earlier, are in the habit of talking aloud while watching it again. They keep talking and telling what is going to happen next. Thus, they ruin the charm for all those who are sitting around watching for the first time.

1. How many of you go to watch movies at the cinema ?
2. Have you ever met people described in the above passage?
3. What will you do if you find yourself in the same situation described in above passage?

ACTIVITY - 2

Rules of etiquette are important for smooth social life. We expect people to behave in certain ways. If they do not, they hurt our feelings and cause us inconvenience or disturbance.

Here are a few examples of annoying manners – lacking in etiquette.

- Talking very loudly in public places.
- Smoking in buses and trains
- Spitting on roads and public places.
- Throwing garbage anywhere
- Entering somebody's premises without permission.
- Interrupting when two persons are talking

Now, make a list of acts of behaviour you consider to be improper and annoying. Compare your list with that of your friends.

ACTIVITY - 3

Compare your list with that of your friends. Write the list on a chart paper and display it in the class.

At the Theatre (To the Lady behind me)

- A.P. Herbert

34

Dear Madam, you have seen this play:
I ever saw it till today.
You know the details of the plot
But, let me tell you, I do not.

The author seeks to keep from me
The murderer's identity,
And you are not a friend of his
If you keep shouting who it is.

The actors in their funny way
Have several funny things to say,
But they do not amuse me more
If you have said them just before.

The merit of the drama lies,
I understand, in some surprise;
But the surprise now must be small
Since you have just foretold all.

The lady you have brought with you
Is, I infer, a half-wit, too,
But can understand the piece
Without assistance from your niece.

In short, foul woman, it would suit
Me just as well if you were mute
In fact, to make my meaning plain,
I trust, you will not speak again.

And - may I add one human touch?
Don't breathe upon my neck so much.

40

ACTIVITY - 2THE TIGER'S CLAW PART - 1

(1)

I opened my eyes and saw at the door a tiger pushing himself in. It was a muddled moment for me: not being sure whether the dream was continuing or whether I was awake. I, at first, thought it was my friend the station-master who was coming in, but my dream had fully prepared my mind. I saw the thing clearly against the starlit sky, tail wagging, growling, and, above all, his terrible eyes gleaming through the dark. I understood the fertilizer company would have to manage without my lectures from the following day. The tiger himself was rather startled by the noise of the chair and stood hesitating. He saw me quite clearly in my corner, and he seemed to be telling himself,

“My dinner is there ready but let me first know what this clattering noise is about.”

Somehow wild animals are less afraid of beings than they are of pieces of furniture like chairs and tables. I have seen circus men managing a whole menagerie with nothing more than a chair. God gives us such recollections in order to save us at critical moments; and as the tiger stood observing me and watching the chair, I put out my hands and with desperate strength drew the table towards me, and also the stool. I sat with my back to the corner, the table wedged in nicely with the corner. I sat under it and the stool walled up another side. While I dragged the table down, a lot of things fell off it, a table-lamp, a long knife and pins. From my shelter, I peeped at the tiger who was also watching me with interest. Evidently he didn't like his meal to be so completely shut out of sight. So he cautiously advanced a step or two, making a sort of rumbling noise in his throat which seemed to shake up the little station house. My end was nearing. I really pitied the woman whose lot it was to have become my wife.

I held up the chair like a shield and flourished it, and the tiger hesitated and fell back a step or two. Now once again we spent some time watching for each other's movements. I held my breath and waited. The tiger stood there fiercely waving its tail, which sometimes struck the side walls and sent forth a thud. He suddenly crouched down without taking his eyes off me, and scratched the floor with his claws. "He is sharpening them for me," I told myself. The little shack had already acquired the smell of a zoo. It made me sick. The tiger kept scratching the floor with his forepaws. It was the most hideous sound you could think of.

Comment on the narrator's feelings when he says, "It was the most hideous sound you could think of ." Justify the statement.

ACTIVITY - 5PART - 2

(4)

All of a sudden he sprang up and flung his entire weight on this lot of furniture. I thought it'd be reduced to matchwood, but fortunately your railways have a lot of foresight and choose the heaviest timber for their furniture. That saved me. The tiger could do nothing more than perch himself on the roof of the table and hang down his paws: he tried to strike me down, but I parried with a chair and stool. The table rocked under him. I felt smothered; I could feel his breath on me.

(5)

He sat completely covering the top, and went on shooting his paws in my direction. He would have scooped portions out of me for his use, but fortunately I sat right in the corner, a hair's-breadth out of his reach on any side. He made vicious sounds and wriggled over my head. He could have knocked the chair to one side and dragged me out if he had come down, but somehow the sight of the chair seemed to worry him for a time. He preferred to be out of its reach. This battle went on for a while, I cannot say how long: Time had come to a dead stop in my world. He jumped down and walked about the table, looking for a gap: I rattled the chair a couple of times, but very soon it lost all its terror for him; he patted the chair and found that it inoffensive. At this discovery he tried to hurl it aside. But I was too quick for him. I swiftly drew it towards me and wedged it tight into the arch of the table, and the stool protected me on another side. I was more or less in a stockade made of the legs of furniture. He sat up on his haunches in front of me, wondering how best to get me.

(6)

Now the chair, table and stool had formed a solid block, with me at their heart, and they could withstand all his tricks. He scrutinized my arrangement with great interest, espied a gap and thrust his paw in. It dangled in my eyes with the curved claws opening out towards me. I felt very angry at the sight of it. Why should I allow the offensive to be developed all in his own way? I felt very indignant. The long knife from the station-master's table was lying nearby. I picked it up and drove it in. He withdrew his paw, maddened by pain. He jumped up and nearly brought down the room, and then tried to crack to bits the entire stockade. He did not succeed. He once again thrust his paw in. I employed the knife to good purpose and cut off a digit with the claw on it. It was a fight to the finish between him and me. He returned again and again to the charge. And I cut out, let me confess, three claws, before I had done with him. I had become as bloodthirsty as he.

 . (Those claws, mounted on gold, are hanging around the necks of my daughters. You can come and see them if you like sometime)

- Share your experience with your partner.....A few students could come in front of the class and narrate their experiences. Avoid a repetition.

ACTIVITY - 2

India has a rich cultural heritage. Every state has its uniqueness in practically all aspects of life..... food, clothes, arts and crafts, entertainment, philosophy, mannerisms and the very way of living.

Gujarat, too, is proud of its culture. It has a vast variety of dances with its accompanying music and colourful costumes. The natives of each village or town have special occasions when they burst into their dancing revelry.

If you think you are prepared to walk out of your mundane experience and freefall into a whirlwind of colours, romance and music, then head for the Tarnetar Fair.

For further information visit www.gujarattourism.com.

ACTIVITY - 3

Listen to the story as your teacher reads it. Then you read it silently.

The Tarnetar Fair

(1)

Based on the legend of Draupadi's swayamvara, this fair is a celebration of ethnic Gujarat's folk-dance music, costumes and the arts, centred around young tribal men and women seeking marriage partners. But even for those not interested in finding a spouse, the romance and excitement in the air is captivating, and every year the fair seems only to grow in popularity, attracting visitors and tourists from Gujarat, elsewhere in India, and even abroad.

Here the many coloured costumes, glittering ornaments and free-spirited movements of folk dances as, all combine to create a memorable scene. As the dancers surge in waves of circular movement, the incessant throbbing of the drums keeps them moving in unison, and the drum beats continue throughout the day even as the dancers change from one group to the next.

Many kinds of folk dances are performed; by far the most popular is the raas, in which dancers hold sticks to clack against those of other dancers. As many as one to two hundred women perform rasadas in a single circle, to the beats of four drums at a time and tunes of jodia pavas (double flutes). You may also see people break out into a spontaneous hudo.

Rabari women of nearby Zalawad perform the famous circular folk dance rahado. Their marital status is indicated by their costumes; a black zimi, (skirt) means she is married. But if a woman is wearing a red zimi, it means she has not yet tied the knot, probably seeking a husband. The potential husbands seeking brides are elegantly dressed in colourful dhotis, artistically designed waistcoats and head-cloth twisted at an angle, moving about the fairground at Tarnetar with striking umbrellas, advertising the bachelorhood they are keen to relinquish.

(4)

Numerous sadhus and bhajan mandlis (religious music groups) are engrossed in singing continuously, accompanied by folk instruments.

(5)

The Tarnetar Mela covers a large part of the Tarnetar village with a huge number of stalls put up to sell beautiful local handicrafts unavailable elsewhere, along with ethnic jewellery statues of deities and traditional attire with tiny mirrors embroidered into the clothing. There are also merry-go-round rides, photographers' stalls, magic shows and tattoo artists who attract a large variety of visitors.

(6)

The fair is held for three days every year during the Hindu calendar dates of Bhadarva Sud-4th, 5th, and 6th (during the Gregorian calendar months Aug.-Sept.)

(7)

The Tarnetar fair is held 8 km from the town of Thangadh, in Surendranagar district. This is the nearest railway station, on the Ahmedabad-Hapa broad gauge line. The nearest town with road transportation to other places is Chotila, 25km. from Thangadh, which is connected by ST buses from Rajkot (75km), Jamnagar (162km), Ahmedabad (196km) or Porbandar (252km). From Bhavnagar, Chotila can be reached either via Rajkot, a trip of 264km, or via Botad, a shorter journey of 190km. Chotila, Thangadh and Tarnetar well connected by ST buses and other modes of transportation. The nearest airport is Rajkot, 75km. away.

(8)

The Kolis of Saurashtra initiated the custom of embroidering umbrellas, which are exquisitely elaborate in terms of embellishments. The embroidery of each is unique and rises from the edges all the way to the top, with beadwork and patchwork in the design as well. Small colourful handkerchiefs are attached all around the edge, to attract further attention. These men spend over a year embroidering their umbrellas. Their intention is to entice the girls with their art, clothes and headgear and impress them, so that they can propose them for marriage. It is not surprising that, before the fair is over, they usually meet the lady of their choice.

Formative Assessment

Throughout the use of this textbook, the goal is to encourage students to notice and produce language so that they move from a novice stage of comprehension to an intermediate stage of production. Throughout the book, the teacher's focus is on facilitation of the activities. The teacher facilitates by continually supporting students in understanding the text and questions. The teacher is never responsible for teaching the content of the lessons or for eliciting certain answers from students. Assessment should reflect this goal. Where possible, assessment should be conducted via interview or via open ended essay questions so that teachers and parents can see that students are becoming more and more proficient in producing language at an intermediate level.

The key to assessment using this design is to assess what students would know how to DO after they have accomplished the language tasks in the book. Remember that the goal in using this design is never to test content. Students will certainly learn from the content, but the content is merely there to be interesting and to give students something to focus on while learning to use the target language.

A few assessment samples are included in the Revision section of this text. Teachers can download more free, printable assessment items on www.onlinetextbook.info.
